

February 12th: Looking into the Future of U.S. Energy Policy

Vincent DeVito, Energy and Climate Change Attorney, Bowditch & Dewey, LLP

With the new Obama administration actively in place, one thing is already certain about the U.S. energy policy -- that it will undergo a dramatic shift from the past. What policy directions might we expect? What models exist in individual states -- including Massachusetts -- and in other countries? What political struggles are likely to impact policy changes?

Vincent DeVito, an Energy and Climate Change attorney, will speak to these questions, and address the opportunities, challenges, and economic solutions for the renewable energy and clean technology business sectors.

---

Location

The First Parish in Cambridge Unitarian
Universalist 3 Church Street Harvard Square
Cambridge, MA

Time

Program begins at 7:30
PM Doors open at 7:00
PM

---

Mr. DeVito is a recognized authority on renewable energy development and corporate sustainability issues. Mr. DeVito served as an energy lawyer for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and later joined the Department of Energy, overseeing the past administration's Climate Change Technology Program and spearheading the North American Energy Working Group.

Mr. DeVito is a frequent commentator, speaker and author on issues regarding energy and climate change. Most recently, he was a speaker at the U.S. Carbon Finance Forum held in New York City on September of 2008.

Please join us Thursday February 12th for this comprehensive discussion, and remember that your donations and membership support BASEA.

Boston Area Solar Energy Association

---

email: info@basea.org

web: <http://www.basea.org>